You will bring relevant professional experience, strong assessment, engagement safety planning and communication skills, and the ability to work confidently with complexity, risk. Across all roles, we are seeking people who can balance clear boundaries and accountability with empathy, curiosity and respect, and who are able to work reflectively within a trauma-informed, strengths-based framework.

You will be comfortable working as part of a multi-disciplinary team and in close partnership with other agencies, sharing information appropriately and contributing to collective risk management and decision-making. We are particularly keen to hear from people who value learning, supervision and reflective practice, and who want to help shape and embed a high-quality service within a well-established national model.

Role Purpose

The Drive Programme is a nationally recognised, evidence-based intervention that works with individuals who pose the highest risk of causing serious harm in intimate or family relationships. It combines intensive perpetrator case management with a coordinated multi-agency response, placing victim and survivor safety at the centre of all activity.

The Independent Domestic Abuse Advocate (IDVA) plays a critical safeguarding role within the Drive Programme. The post holder will provide specialist, survivor-centred advocacy, safety planning and risk management for victims and survivors linked to Drive cases, ensuring their voice, safety and wellbeing remain central to system decision-making.

The IDVA works alongside Drive Case Managers, statutory partners and specialist services, while maintaining professional independence and a clear focus on victim safety, choice and empowerment. The role contributes to risk reduction, improved safety outcomes and strengthened multi-agency responses across Bradford.

Main Duties and Responsibilities

1. Specialist IDVA Casework and Survivor Support

- Provide a high-quality, survivor-centred IDVA service, working alongside victims and survivors (of any gender) linked to Drive cases, with particular focus on those experiencing high levels of risk or harm.
- Provide a primarily outreach based service to victims/ survivors, build trusting, respectful and collaborative relationships, recognising the impact of trauma and adapting pace, communication and support to meet individual needs and choices.
- Work with survivors to explore and understand risk, using evidence-based risk identification tools alongside professional judgement, and supporting individuals to make sense of their own experiences and concerns.
- Co-produce individual safety plans with survivors, recognising their expertise in their own lives, and reviewing these plans flexibly as circumstances, risks and priorities change.
- Offer emotional and practical support in a way that promotes autonomy, reduces isolation and strengthens protective factors, without creating dependency or removing agency.
- Support survivors to understand patterns and dynamics of domestic abuse, including coercive control, in a way that is non-blaming, validating and grounded in their lived experience.

- Respond to crisis and heightened risk in partnership with survivors, prioritising safety while respecting choice, consent and individual decision-making wherever possible.
- Ensure all work is underpinned by trauma-informed principles, including safety, trust, collaboration, empowerment and cultural sensitivity.

2. Advocacy and Systems Navigation

- Work alongside survivors to identify the systems, services and processes that affect their safety, wellbeing and choices, and support them to navigate these in ways that feel informed, supported and manageable.
- Provide advocacy that amplifies the survivor's voice, ensuring their views, concerns and priorities are represented accurately and respectfully across agencies.
- Support survivors to explore legal, civil and protective options, including in a way that is accessible, non-directive and paced according to readiness.
- Ensure survivors are fully informed, prepared and supported when engaging with any statutory and legal processes.
- Accompany survivors (in person or through preparation and follow-up) to meetings or processes where appropriate, helping reduce anxiety and increase understanding.
- Share information transparently, supporting survivors to make their own informed decisions, even where these differ from professional or system preferences.
- Recognise and respond to structural and systemic barriers (e.g immigration status, poverty, disability, discrimination), advocating for equitable access to support.
- Act as the voice of the survivor within multi-agency forums, ensuring their perspective informs risk management decisions.

3. MARAC and Multi-Agency Working

- Work in partnership with survivors to discuss the purpose, process and implications of MARAC, supporting informed consent wherever possible.
- Make MARAC referrals where risk thresholds are met, ensuring referrals accurately reflect the survivor's lived experience and priorities.
- Attend MARAC meetings and act as a professional advocate, holding survivor safety, dignity and perspective at the centre of discussion and contribute effectively to risk management planning.
- Follow up MARAC actions in collaboration with survivors, explaining outcomes clearly and revisiting safety planning as needed.
- Maintain professional curiosity and challenge where required, ensuring risk management remains proportionate, survivor-focused and responsive.
- Work closely with police, children's services, wider Drive Team, health, housing and specialist agencies to support coordinated risk reduction.
- Contribute to the development of local pathways, protocols and information-sharing arrangements linked to the Drive Programme
- Contribute to strong local multi-agency relationships that support coordinated, timely and effective responses to domestic abuse.

4. Working Alongside Drive Case Managers

- Work in close collaboration with Drive Case Managers while maintaining clear professional boundaries and the independence of the IDVA role.
- Share relevant safety and risk information appropriately, in line with information-sharing agreements and survivor consent wherever possible.
- Provide specialist victim-safety insight and consultation to the Drive team, supporting safe, ethical and coordinated intervention.
- Ensure survivor perspectives inform system-level decision-making, without placing responsibility for perpetrator behaviour or system outcomes on the survivor.
- Escalate safeguarding concerns promptly and proportionately, maintaining transparency and clarity with survivors about what information is shared and why.

5. Safeguarding, Risk and Professional Practice

- Practice within a robust safeguarding framework, adult and child safeguarding legislation, local safeguarding arrangements and thresholds balancing survivor choice with statutory responsibilities for the protection of adults and children.
- Apply sound professional judgement to risk assessment and management, recognising that risk is dynamic and best understood through ongoing relationship-based work.
- Manage personal safety thoughtfully, including during outreach, visits and multi-agency activity.
- Maintain accurate, timely and respectful case records, recognising documentation as part of safe, ethical practice rather than surveillance.
- Uphold confidentiality, data protection and information-sharing standards, explaining boundaries clearly and compassionately to survivors.
- Reflect on practice regularly, using supervision to explore complexity, ethical dilemmas and emotional impact.

6. Organisational and Professional Responsibilities

- Participate fully in supervision, reflective practice and appraisal processes recognising these as essential to safe, sustainable IDVA work.
- Engage in ongoing learning and professional development to maintain high-quality, evidence-informed practice and maintain up-to-date knowledge of domestic abuse practice, legislation and policy.
- Contribute to service and team learning and development and quality improvement, including training and mentoring of colleagues where appropriate.
